SCOTTISH SPORT.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

EDINBURGH, Oct. 27.

ASSOCIATION LEAGUE.

Heart of Mid-Lothian took the field in the Scottish League wearing black bands on their arms. Two of their companions of last season, the captain, James Watson, and J. H. Speedie, the latter being a distinguished authority on surgery, is what Americans call a "live wire," and since the outbreak of the war he has devoted himself with whole-hearted disinterestedness to demolishing the German "case" so persistently presented in America. He also has established in France the American Ambulance Hospital, with which the University of Pennsylvania is closely identified. At present he is in London. The following is the full text of his letter:

Dear — I have no objection to try to answer categorically the question you put, though you must remember that I am only one of a hundred millions, and not a very important one at that.

I do think it desirable that, every possible means should be employed by Americans here to let Americans at home know and realize the exact truth of the situation, the magnitude of the task undertaken by the Allies, the magnificent way in which they are, on the whole, attacking it, and the absolute determination they show to accomplish it finally and successfully. It is takes years to do so.

When I wrote home from here in June as to my impressions of the British frame of mind I said:

They haven't the slightest idea of being beaten finally. They are as one man about that. They intend to win if they have to finish the war ten years from now and alone. I find no one who doubts the faithfulness of either France, Belgium, Russia or Italy. But in their hearts they all think that if it should happen that they'd have to whip Germany without outside help, they'd manage some how or other to do it, terrific task as they know it would be.

So far as I could analyze it, their confidence is partly based on their belief in (a) their ability, in time, to match in numbers and in quality of men any Continental army; (b) their ability, in time, to make or procure increasing supplies of munitions of war so that ultimately the superiority will rest with them; (c) their ability not only to keep up their present preponderance of sea power, but continuously to increase it, as they are able to add fighting units to their navy far more rapidly than the Germans; (d) their confidence in their ability to keep up a more and more stringent blockade, and so make it more and more difficult for Germany to get food, copper, petrol, etc.; (e) their faith in the influence of their enormous national wealth, which will be a factor of increasing importance as the war goes on, and may, at last, be the decisive factor.

As far as I could see, every man is ready to spend or give his last shilling to secure victory.

CRICKETERS ON THE LINKS.

Dr. W. G. Grace was more than a great cricketer, he was a great sportsman. In golf, in particular, he was no mean performer. This recalls that other great players have been successful with the club as well as the bat. Mr. Walter J. Travis, the Australian-American golfer, was, to use his own phrase, "brought up on golf." Captain G. K. Hutchinson is not only a fine golfer but an excellent batsman. And the late A. E. Stoddard divided his affections between the two games. But we have a good example at our own house of this double love in Mr. Leslie Balfour-Melville. He won the Amateur Championship in 1895, had been runner up six years before that, represented Scotland in the International in 1902 and 1903, was runner-up in the French Championship in 1910, and, in addition, secured many cricket medals. The remarkable thing is that concurrently through all those years of achievement he played in cricket almost continuously for Scotland and captained many of the Scottish teams. Mr. Balfour-Melville's great record does not disclose any conflict between the ability to play fine cricket and that to play excellent golf.

WHEN EVERY NOISE GETS "ON YOUR NERVES."

When you have so far lost control of your nerves that you "fly to pieces" over the least little noise or excitement it is high time to give your nerves a rest, and to build up your blood. You are keeping up on your nerves alone. Your pale, yellow complexion shows that your blood is thin and watery. Your whole system is weak and run down. The drawn look, the sunken eyes, the deepening lines about the mouth and forehead, the loss in weight, are plain signs that the nerves and body are being poorly nourished. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up, purify and put your blood in shape to properly nourish your exhausted, overstrained nervous system. They contain no opiates or harmful drugs. They give strength not stimulation. Go to the nearest medicine dealer to-day and get a bottle of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for $1.50 or six bottles for $3.00. Or send for them direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96, Sechuen Road, Shanghai. The prices include postage.

Don't put off taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills any longer. You may be nearer a collapse than you think. Few people know the endurance Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up, purify and put your blood in shape to properly nourish your exhausted, overstrained nervous system. They contain no opiates or harmful drugs. They give strength not stimulation. Go to the nearest medicine dealer to-day and get a bottle of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for $1.50 or six bottles for $3.00. ## THE ATTITUDE OF AMERICA TO THE ALLIES.

THE MORAL FACTOR.

This summary of the views I have, as it were, imbibed after contact with some dozens of more or less important persons, would not be complete or even fair if I did not mention one other factor that perhaps has as much influence on their outlook as all the others combined. They believe to a man (as they have the right to believe) in the justice of their cause. They believe (as they have the right to believe) that they and their allies are fighting not only their own battles, but the battles of every civilized nation, of every real democracy, of every opponent of autocracy and militarism and of the pestilential doctrine that might makes right. They think, though they don't say it in so many words, that this moral superiority over their enemies, this innermost consciousness that they are fighting for humanity at large, is bound to have more and more weight as time goes on, and that it will sooner or later become overwhelming in its influence. I hear no cant about special help from on High. They claim for Great Britain and the Allies no definite and exclusive relation to God. No one apparently thinks that he has a Divine mission to lead this people to war; no "shining armour" is donned. But in place of that sort of medieval obsession there is a grim, unvarying, almost silent belief that in the long run right will prevail, not because God is going to "give Himself endless trouble" about the Allies (as the Kaiser says He has about the Hohenzollerns), but because of well-grounded faith in the integrity, common sense and fair-mindedness of the average person, of whatever race, in this 20th century.

AMERICA'S PRESTIGE.

They believe, as I believe, that time is fighting on their side with an influence that will finally be irresistible. These considerations may be useful to you in determining what it is that we should write in trying to make Americans understand the situation.

I do think with you that America has suffered a certain loss of prestige, of dignity and of influence in the councils of the world by what you call "our unfortunate public performances in the last year." In regard to this I wrote in the communication above referred to:

As to America, not one person has shown any disposition to urge her participation or to express any unduly or even extremely critical opinions. They realize and say that "to go to war is a terrible step, and that each nation must judge for itself. But there is no doubt that beneath their scrupulous politeness there is a sense of disappointment that we have lost so many opportunities to make our country the real moral leader of the nations by instant and earnest protest of international wrongs, threatened or accomplished. And there is also obvious a feeling of amazement that after the Lusitania murders of American men, women and children we are still exchanging polite diplomatic and often complimentary notes with the murderers; that is, with the "Imperial German Government." But their feeling about this is rather to be inferred from what they do not say than learned directly.

Since then I can see with growing clearness from my talks with representative men and women, in France and here, that while they are too polite to criticize, they are nevertheless now mentally identifying our Government's policy (if it may be called that) with the American national spirit and are regarding both with increasing disgust. This is partly our own fault. If we had protested—as we should have done—when Belgium was first threatened, our position before the world to-day would have been one in which Americans could take a justifiable pride. We might have said to the belligerent: "You may possibly go to war over territorial and other questions which do not concern us; but if, in the process, you threaten or ignore the rights of one of our fellow neutral nations, you, by so much, doubt and offend us, and we hereby give you notice that, so far as we are able, we will not permit it." It is even conceivable that if we had done this the earnest request of Great Britain for a conference would have been accepted by Germany, in which case there would have been no war.

It is certainly, if not our fault, our misfortune that we did not seize that opportunity; and I regard it as a national calamity. But I need scarcely tell you that I also regard the American spirit as essentially as sound in this crisis as it ever was. It is simply being misrepresented at home, and, naturally enough, misinterpreted abroad.

AMERICAN OPINION.

You ask if I think my views are fairly representative of American feeling. I reply—and please disregard the apparently egotistical implication—that I believe they represent the overwhelming preponderance of intelligent and informed American opinion. They are held by practically all the men who have ever contributed anything worth while toward the upbuilding of America. They are views which are now rapidly spreading, in spite of the furious and unrelenting pro-German propaganda, throughout that portion of our population who, by reason of remoteness, not only from the scenes of conflict, but from the great centres of thought and mental activity, are slowest to move. They are views which from the outset have been unflinchingly held and set forth by our press. And it is worth while to note, when Americans are rather on the defensive before the world as to their so-called "dollar policy," to note that this "revelation of the New York World" have shown that the expenditure of millions of the aforesaid dollars has not produced even a ripple on the surface of the steadfast support and sympathy which the American press, speaking for the American people, has extended to the Allies since the beginning of the war.

SANITARY BOARD.

THE LATE MR. E. A. HEWETT.

Reference to the death of the late Hon. Mr. E. A. Hewett, C.M.G., was made at the usual meeting of the Sanitary Board this afternoon. Mr. W. D. Trautman, President of the Department, was in the chair and there were also present Hon. Mr. E. R. Hallifax (Secretary for Chinese Affairs), Col. Crisp, R.A.M.C., Mr. P. W. Goldring, Dr. F. Pearce (Medical Officer of Health), Mr. Chan Kai Ming and Mr. Bowen-Rowlands (secretary). The Chairman at the outset of the meeting said that since the last meeting the Board had sustained a sudden and heavy loss in the passing of the senior unofficial member. In him they lost a steadfast counsellor, who never flinched in advising what he thought was best in the interests of the Colony, and whose advice was founded on a deep and well considered knowledge of the Colony and its people. He (the President) thought the Board would be unanimous in wishing that the minutes should record their deep sorrow at the death of the Hon. Mr. E. A. Hewett and their high appreciation of his work as a member of that Board. The resolution was carried in silence.

SANITATION IN MODERN FLATS.

The Board considered an application to erect 20 water closets at Nos. 16 to 26, Nathan Road, Kowloon.

Mr. Goldring minuted: I can't see why these should not be granted. The inconvenience of the present system is very undesirable in these premises and in all blocks of flats.

The Medical Officer minuted: In view of the fact that the steomy fasciitis has been found to exist in the Colony, the suggestion of Dr. Woodman's in the paper on "The Proper Screening of Cisterns," is important. I am in favour of granting the application as applications of flats are, by the decision of the Board, to be treated as are hotels in respect of w.c.'s.

Col. Crisp agreed with the remarks.

The application was granted on the motion of Mr. Goldring, seconded by Dr. Pearce.

The Board granted permission to erect a water closet at 5, Chater Road.

SUPREME COURT.

The Criminal Sessions being fixed for to-morrow, the Court sat late this afternoon in order that Mr. Potter might complete his reply to the Crown Counsel, on behalf of the fugitive.

Mr. Potter observed that there was not a suggestion of robbers, as far as the fugitive was concerned, in documents produced by the Canton Government. Sam-to-chuk was specially mentioned in the document dated Nov. 23rd as a place where the people were rising in rebellion. The rebels started from Sam-to-chuk to attack the soldiers at Ping-shan.

"What would a jury say to all this evidence?" counsel asked. He submitted they would come to the conclusion that the fugitive was a rebel. He had a price upon his head sufficient to cause cupidity in under-officials or others. That price had been upon his head for over a year. It was $10,000 and the price was upon his head to execute him as a rebel. The Canton Government said so frankly, the fugitive was a thorn in their side and they said he would continue to be until he was put to death. Was it like a Government to give a man an opportunity of self-glorification by calling him a rebel in arms and placing a price upon his head when, in fact, he was a common robber, a murderer, a man who shot cooks?

Counsel observed that was not like the way of the Chinese Government.

THE LATEST NEWS FROM SERBIA.

LONDON, Nov. 29.
An Athens telegram states that Colonel Vassitch has telegraphed from Monastir to the Serbian Minister that he is leaving for Sarajevo.

The Serbians are defending the road from the Kosoovo plain towards Prizrend.

Thousands of refugees on the Kosoovo plain had to be abandoned to the mercy of the invaders.

A retreat in the direction of Scutari and Durazzo had been decided upon and the vanguard had already entered Albanian territory. What remained cannot be transported will be destroyed.

The message adds: "The enemy has five times more forces than mine. We will defend Monastir till to-morrow."

Colonel Vassitch will retreat to Tesna and thence to El Bassan in Albania.

SITUATION AT MONASTIR PRECARIOUS.

SALONIKA, Nov. 29.
The situation at Monastir is precarious. The civil authorities have left the town, but Colonel Vassitch is firmly resolved to defend the town to the last.

THE CAMEROONS.

CORDON BEING DRAWN AROUND THE GERMANS.

LONDON, Nov. 29.
The Press Bureau announces that General Doherty's French and British forces are gradually drawing a ring round the Germans in the Cameroons. The Allies have inflicted heavy losses on the enemy whose centre of resistance is the high ground around Jaunde, while the Germans in the North Cameroons are now beaten and broken up into small parties which Brigadier Cunliffe is pursuing.

ITALIAN CORDON ROUND GORIZIA.

ROME, Nov. 29.

A communique says that attacks on the heights north-west of Gorizia were successfully continued. We captured strong hostile trenches and began the descent of the Isonzo watershed. We took 115 prisoners.

In the neighbourhood of Osavia, after a fierce struggle, we conquered a hill, taking 201 prisoners.

On the rest of the front we made some progress.

THE GOVERNMENT AND CANADA'S WHEAT SENSATION.

PONT WILLIAM (Ontario), Nov. 29.

It is understood that the order commanding that wheat be sent to the Dominion Government can only be obeyed if such results in Canadian ports are assigned to the Dominion Government.

The news created a sensation in Winnipeg. The opinion of the shipper held that the order was a violation of the contract, but the situation is obscure, as the Government plans respecting price and disposition are unknown.

CHIEF INSPECTOR GOURLAY RETIRES.

TWENTY-FOUR YEARS' SERVICE IN HONGKONG.

Chief Police Inspector David Gourlay retires from the Hongkong Constabulary to-day after a long and honourable connection with the Force, extending over a period of twenty-four years. During the whole of that time he has worked with zeal, gradually obtaining promotion until two years ago he reached the highest pinnacle he could attain in the Force, that of Chief Inspector of the 1st class. In his official capacity he proved himself to be a considerate and obliging superior, while at the same time he was a good disciplinarian. His comrades knew how to respect him and outside "the daily round," he won the admiration of not only members of the Force, but also of a large number of officials and residents generally. His departure from Hongkong will be widely regretted. He retires on pension, the reward for long and meritorious service. Mr. Gourlay sails for Home on the "Sardinia" on Saturday and will join his wife and son who left the Colony for Scotland early last year.

Mr. Gourlay was drafted from the Dundee Police Force and came to Hongkong as a constable in 1891. He made the journey with 29 others to recruit for the Hongkong Police Force and the only two remaining along with him are Mr. D. MacKerron of the Revenue Office and Mr. McElroy, Inspector of Junks. Every one of the score mentioned in this position of note. Chief Detective Inspector Collett, Inspector Ritchie and Fenton and the late Inspector McHardy were all members of those that came East in 1891. At that time, the local force comprised 112 European Police, 250 Chinese and about 200 Indians. To-day it has grown to nearly double that strength. There are 175 Europeans, 490 Indians and 530 Chinese all engaged in Police work. Mr. Gourlay has been Home twice in twenty-four years and he was present at the Jubilee celebrations in 1897 representing, along with the Indian and Chinese representatives the Hongkong Police. Over 1000 persons from Colonial forces were present. Mr. Gourlay had the honour of receiving a medal from King Edward, who was then Prince of Wales. His other decorations include the Royal Humane Society's bronze medal for conspicuous bravery displayed during the terrible 1906 typhoon, when, at great peril, he rescued the occupants of a sampan, who were in danger of being dashed to pieces off Observation Pier. H.E. Sir Matthew Na has presented the medal at a reception held at the Government House. Mr. Gourlay also holds the fourth and third class medals for Police service. He had a most exciting time when helping to arrest the famous To Kwa Wan pirates in 1900, who had attacked and looted a couple of junks in Kowloon Bay. Inspector Gourlay was in charge of the Water Police then and as a result of a search 16 of the pirates were arrested. They were the men who had long held a reign of terror around the neighbourhood and met their "Waterloo" at the hands of the police. Mr. Gourlay then had a narrow escape. He was wrestling with one of the most desperate of the outlaws who clutched his tightly. The struggle lasted for half an hour, but eventually the pirate was arrested and sentenced to ten years' hard labour. His mates received seven years' each. For this bravery Mr. Gourlay and the other police received a gift of £25 and were highly commended by the Chief Justice. Mr. Gourlay was also the means of bringing to book a pirate who escaped around Picnic Bay and eventually captured after being all night among the bushes. Another of Mr. Gourlay's experiences was the arresting of a Chinese in Hollywood Road on a charge of arson, and at a place where 18 people were burnt alive. The Chinese was sentenced to gaol by Sir H. Berkeley for the rest of his natural life and two fives secured seven years' each.

In sports, Mr. Gourlay shone at the Police Recreation club. He was fond of tennis and cricket and latterly he played bowls. He won the Championship of the Colony at the Kowloon Bowling Club four years ago.

Mr. Gourlay was also in charge of Government House as caretaker and porter for one year and three months during Sir Henry Blake's tenure as Governor. The Chief Inspector recalls that during 1911 when there was a water famine and tanks were built on the Praya. The water was cut off from the Government Street by Hollywood Road to Western Street and during this period there was a serious outbreak of fire, which raged for days and gutted 52 houses.

We join with Mr. Gourlay's many friends in hoping that in his native land he may live his last days in good health to enjoy his well-earned retirement.

Our Scottish Tally.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

EDINBURGH, October 27.
THE CAMERONS IN THE GREAT ADVANCE.

Bit by bit the story of the "great advance" is coming together into a coherent whole and it is an interesting story that makes and bathes in glory. As yet, of course, the accounts deal only with the unit to which the writer happens to be attached, and perhaps the battalions on each side; but on one point they all agree, that the New Army came back from the attack in the highest spirit, they had met the Boches and bashed them. As for the Highlanders, they "marched in singing." Among the happiest accounts that have come home is from the pen of a representative of the Camerons. He writes of his regiment—Have you heard how our 5th battalion went over the parapet singing the war cry of the University men—

Alasava, alasava,
Corraballa, corraballa,
Jingling, jingling,
Cameronsgate, Cameronsgate,
Eggorra, eggorra, Eggorra—

Until you have heard this verse shouted from the throats of a battalion you can have little idea of its effect upon the enemy. A great shout, howling the tune, and the fact that the last "Eggorra" was the top C, I cannot tell what the verse means or where it originated. It cost the 5th dear to take what they were ordered. Have you heard how the 6th and 7th battalions of the Buffs made a marvellous standard of a piece of tartan and a pole, and raised it right to the top of the heights? How they stuck to their most advanced position all day under concentrated artillery fire? How many of a certain battalion sprang up and charged down the far side of a hill and never returned? Whether they fought themselves out of existence or were captured, time alone will show. Just now the year "missing."

HIGHLAND LAND WAR RECALLED.

Shirif Lecky, whose death has taken place in Edinburgh at an advanced age, was a Scottish advocate of the old school, and was indeed the doyen of the Faculty. It was when he was Sheriff of Inverness in 1890 that he came into prominence. In that year there was a general resistance to the payment of rent in Skye. In serving writs upon the crofters the sheriff-officers were deforced, and several conflicts took place between the crofters and the police. The Government of the day took a serious view of the situation; a force of marines was landed and the crofters were conveyed the writs by sea, the police, and the marines, to various parts of the coast line. The Sheriff, as may be supposed, had difficult and delicate duties to perform. He had to arrange for several night watches in the endeavour to capture crofters concerned in the deforcement, and in one of these, a landing in the early morning at Glendale, resulted in the arrest in his bed of John Macpherson, well known at that time as "the Glendale martyr." Through all the turmoil and excitement, and repeated attacks in Parliament, the Sheriff remained calm and unperturbed. Every evening he despatched a message to the Secretary for Scotland, then Mr. A. J. Balfour, recording the day's doings. I have never seen a longer message and a trying day of writing, sitting down, his pipe in full blast, at a dyke side, and write his report to the Secretary, sending it to the Post Office at Portree, 25 or 30 miles away, by the hands of a friendly newspaper reporter, who had to drive to that place in order to put his own message on the wire.

THE PROBLEM OF THE EAST.

Canon Tupper Carey, speaking at Glasgow, said that one of the greatest features of the present war was the arrival of Indian troops to fight in France and Flanders. We would not have coloured troops to fight for us in the South African War, but we had them in the East, entering into Western civilisation and claiming its place in the sun. The East was wide awake. They saw that education meant power, and they were going to have it. That meant that the East they were turning their backs on their old religious and tribal life, and were turning to meet the world if the white East were to be allowed to drift into materialism and atheism? The only way to meet the difficulty was by Christianising the impact between East and West and that was the future work of foreign missions. The "Yellow Peril" might yet become the Church's golden opportunity.

A NOTED MUNITIN MAKER.

While everybody is talking of munitions and their manufacture, the greatest authority on the subject, theoretical and practical, of the production of war munitions has passed away. Sir Andrew Noble, though associated for over half a century with the great Elswick Works at Newcastle, was a Scot, born at Greenock; and whenever he escaped from his duties on the Clyde, he was to be found in the neighbourhood of the Elswick Works, not infrequently lecturing on the subject of munitions to the representatives of the old lands. The Elswick Works were destroyed by fire in 1833 and Sir Andrew built a new one; he also restored Dunderberg Castle, the ancient stronghold of the chiefs of Mac-Naghton. He was greatly interested in the collection of wild birds, and it was a great regret to him when, two years ago, he gave up his life, which had nestled and reared their young for many seasons on the cliffs of Glen Fyne, known as Eagles Falls, so that place and built a nest on a precipice on an adjoining estate.

ELKIE AND THE VIC.

The cigarette habit has received its association in this war. The "Woodbine" variety of the weed is notoriously the favourite. It is said to be "meat and drink" to the soldier, but even death to those who have not acquired the habit gradually. One who witnessed the arrival of a train-load of wounded in Scotland describes the scene thus: "Most of the men are able to walk, but the carriages by themselves they are all smoking the inevitable 'Woodbine'—at any rate, appear to be doing so. He adds, 'Even the stretcher cases are provided with a bag, they would not feel happy or comfortable without it. They are all British soldiers and all at wounds and death?'

THE HIGHLANDERS AS PIGS.

Mr. McKinnon Wood, a Scotch agriculturalist, writes to the "Penny" that he met with much response in the Highland West, and certainly the Highlanders will not take any of it. They have a strong sympathy in the "mama" story, that only two pigs ever landed on the Island of Barra; now were used ashore from a wreck; and the natives promptly threw the hateful beasts back into the sea. In Gaelic lore the devil is represented in one of his forms as a black pig.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A LITTLE GROWL.

(To the Editor of the "CHINA MAIL.")

As a member of the Special Police, and a Scotsman, I have a little growl to make which I think is reasonable. This being St. Andrew's Day the "Boches" that be might have reserved the Special Police duties on this day to the "Sassanachs."

Yours, etc.,

THE PIPER.

Yestreen the piper, on his way,
Made music through the glens:
It was about the gloamin' grey,
And morn' a body passed to say—
"There's mair that hears the piper play
Than e'er the piper kens."

Pipe as he will, this morn' a day,
O' Scotland and the brave,
Women and bairns and grandies grey
Are a' the listeners he can hae;
There's nane beside, ye'll hear folk say,
The war has b'en the lave.

And yet there's some that no' see a side:
Yestreen he played as clear:
Yon was an eerie, darksome hour,
And ancient tunes he's upo' po'er
When battle clouds above us loom,
Ye ken na wha may hear.

And Myle w' the Second Sight
Saw, rin' frae the cairn duns
Died heroes: clannmen, chief, and knight,
To strike for Scotland and the right,
Saw wha their ghastly armour bright
Move, glimmerin' through the ferns!

Fa' to the southward, over the brae,
Down through the dusty duns
They gaed, a mighty ghast in grey,
The ancient pibroch they obey,
There's mair that hears the piper play
Than e'er the piper kens.

Lady Decker, who has been from the Highlands, and has for some months past been doing duty in Serbia, writes that "this country is a mixture of Moor of Rannoch and the look of Ben Wyvis. Sometimes when I take a trip out among the hills and lochs, my way I feel quite at home."

"The office of Miss Corrie was that of Flora Macdonald," says the "Dundee Advertiser." "Lady Alice Little suffered similarly in the black days after Sedgemoor: she is remembered, so is Judge Jeffrey, who condemned her," is the comment of the "Glasgow Herald."
